

GERMANY

These lists include services on the North Sea and Baltic coasts of Germany, and adjacent rivers. Many other fleets of excursion vessels run on the middle and upper Rhine, Mosel, Main, Neckar, upper Elbe, in Berlin, on the Alpine lakes and other waterways, but these are beyond the scope of this guide. The North Sea coast is surrounded by shallow water and sandbanks; for most of its length, the coastline is an embankment protecting flat farm land. With one or two exceptions, all the holiday resorts are on the islands, most of which are too small to accept visitors' cars. Helgoland has striking red cliffs and as an added attraction, duty-free goods can still be bought there (but not on ships sailing to the island); in summer, most ships anchor off the island and passengers are landed in launches. Germany's Baltic coast has varied and pleasant scenery, with chalk cliffs on the island of Rügen. Vessels are of German registry unless stated otherwise.
