

NORTHERN BALTIC

This list includes international services between Sweden, Finland, Latvia and Estonia. The Åland Islands, which lie between Sweden and Finland, are politically part of Finland though the population is almost entirely Swedish-speaking. The islands have a special status within the European Union, and duty-free sales continue on ships calling at the islands. To qualify for the full duty-free allowance, Swedish and Finnish citizens must spend at least 20 hours outside their own country, hence the popularity of short cruises offered by several companies at very reasonable fares.
